In their amicus curiae brief, Dr. Bosworth and Mr. Leonard acknowledge Defendant-Appellant's plurality at-large elections dilute the Latino vote, and propose Evaluative Proportional Representation ("EPR") as an appropriate remedy for combatting that vote dilution. While it may be an interesting system, EPR was not proposed to the Trial Court, or discussed by any of the trial witnesses, and therefore is not part of the record properly considered by this Court.

Several potential remedies were, however, discussed by witnesses at trial and addressed by the Trial Court in its Statement of Decision, and therefore are properly considered by this Court. As explained more fully in Plaintiffs-Respondents' Opening Brief (pp. 29-33, 66-72) and Reply Brief (pp. 41-45), as well as the Amicus Curiae Brief of FairVote, the Trial Court did consider several potential remedies – district-based elections, ranked-choice voting, limited voting and cumulative voting – and found that each would enhance Latino voting power in Santa Monica, giving Latinos greater ability not just to influence elections but also to elect candidates of their choice. (24AA10706-10707; 24AA10733-10735.) One of those – ranked-choice voting – is also a proportional representation system, and has features that are similar in some respects to EPR.

The Trial Court ultimately found that district-based elections was the most appropriate remedy, and accordingly ordered that all future Santa Monica City Council elections be district-based. (24AA10733-10735.)

The Trial Court correctly evaluated: the demographics of the proposed remedial district; the precinct-level results of past city council elections; the political organization of the minority community in the proposed remedial district; the wealth disparities between the majority and minority communities, in light of the extraordinary cost of campaigning citywide in Santa Monica; and the experiences of other jurisdictions that recently adopted district elections. (24AA10734-10735). As discussed more fully in Plaintiffs-Respondents' briefs, those factual findings are entitled to deference. (Opening Brief, pp. 34-35; Reply Brief, pp. 32-34.) Those factual findings compel the conclusions reached by the Trial Court: that Defendant-Appellant's plurality at-large elections dilute the Latino vote; and district-based elections is an appropriate remedy in the circumstances of this case.

Nonetheless, the availability of other remedies, "each of which would enhance Latino voting power in Santa Monica over the current atlarge system" employed by Appellant-Defendant (24AA10706-10707), further supports the conclusion that Defendant-Appellant's plurality atlarge election system dilutes the Latino vote in violation of the California Voting Rights Act. (See Opening Brief, pp. 70-72; Reply Brief, pp. 44-45; FairVote Amicus Brief, pp. 11-47).
